

Sleeping Women - Awake!

Day #1

May 9, 2022

What words express your experience with the village of heart centered men and design/creating female?

Kristin:

it was beautiful to see the love and peace that the village homes were filled with. I saw explosions of purple, pinks and white mandala looking energies vibrating from each home. I blessed the trees and land there with love and good harvest. It was a beautiful journey

It felt familiar and safe.

Aisha:

First I was in the northern hemisphere in beautiful mountains with a Nordic people then I was taken to Uluru where a woman was weaving the dream lines and songs using the rainbow for colours and golden thread coming from another universe,

Deborah :

Saw energy like aurora boreal is from men and women using it to create structures, fields, etc

Aydrey:

creation in joy and wonder; colors vibrancy; plants glowing in unique frequencies..calm, peace, serenity

Tara:

I continued to trail off to other things and almost doze off without any control.

“Lee”:

They danced with joy to the sounds of sticks on stones in a circle around a fire. They had woven baskets and wore them as they danced. They fed each other with their fingers and love.

Kristin:

It felt really good to reclaim our sovereignty, put our foot down and say no to the negative energies

What did you notice when the women in the village sensed an 'uncomfortable' feeling.

Deborah:

First awareness of energy was similar to a darkening on the horizon - a coming storm. However it encircled the village - not from only one direction.

Aisha:

The women saw a dark thread appear in the weaving and felt this negatively affect everyone around them, they went into sacred circle to discuss the dark thread that was been woven. Was this source? Should it stay? They decided to cut that thread and pull out the dark thread and they wound it in a ball and threw it in the sacred fire. The energies returned

Take Away...

Shannon:

What came to me was Honoring all Life, that we are all life and that it was we are all life beyond male or female

Thank You
